

Toobahsassins Rules

Goal

Kill your target while not being killed by the person trying to kill you. You win when you're the last toobah standing.

How to kill someone

All attacking/killing is done with spoons. A spoon qualifies as anything spoon shaped (metal spoon, ladle, etc). You must stab, or otherwise touch your target with the spoon end of the spoon in order to kill them. Remember, you're not trying to hurt anyone. You must also be holding your spoon for a kill to count (no throwing spoons). You cannot modify your spoon in any way (no taping many spoons together to make a 10-foot-long 'spoon'). Please keep in mind that plastic spoons (although valid to the game) have been known to break, so be careful.

If you attempt to kill someone, they can defend themselves by counter attacking you. If both players attack at the same time, you have failed as an assassin and the kill doesn't count. You must then wait 12 hours before trying again (and you lose your element of surprise).

When/Where you can kill

Times and places you cannot kill:

- Bathroom
- Dining court
- Between 3pm and 6pm on weekdays (makes band safe)
- During class time in a lecture hall/classroom
- 10 minutes before and after a class only if you're in the classroom or talking to the teacher
- If you live with another player, you cannot kill them in your house/apartment/dorm/etc
- If Purdue is playing a HOME football game, then no killing is allowed between midnight the morning of until 2 hours after dismissal. This lets AAMB members be safe during the game and some time to clean up and relax afterwards.

- If someone is dressed up for a job fair/interview/IR/etc. A player cannot kill or be killed while participating in their professional activities (this includes the walk to and from the activity).

Any place/time not explicitly forbidden is fair game, these include but are not limited to:

- Immediately outside of a dining court
- In Elliott not between 3pm and 6pm
- In someone's room, as long as you don't live with them
- The 10 minutes before/after a class, as long as the target is not in their classroom/talking to their teacher
- Outside
- In a hallway
- Spain

If there are any questions or needs for clarifications, it will defer to the coordinator.

This is for fun. So have fun! And remember, You Must Spoon Hard! #YMSH
